Hurricane Spawns Some Little Anitas

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Anita may become a very popular name for baby girls born in the area in the next few weeks.

Several of the pregnant women who went to shelters opened Thursday because of Hurricane Anita said if their child was a girl they would name it after the storm.

Rosa Hernandez, 29, cannot speak English. But the manner in which she rubbed her bulging stomach and sipped coffee was a sign of her nervousness about possibly delivering her second child during Hurricane Anita.

Mrs. Hernandez of Brownsville said she was due at any time and admitted she was anxious.

Ann Amsbury and her husband, Randy, moved to the shelter in the Brownsville Civic Center from their trailer home on the coastal island of Boca Chica. They said they did not expect their home to be there with they returned.

Mrs. Amsbury is only eight months pregnant. But she said she also was very nervous about possibly delivering her second child during the hurricane.

"If it's a girl, I'll name her Anita," she said.

"But I hope it's a boy," said her husband.

The two women were among a dozen pregnant women at the civic center shelter. Some of the pregnant women are Mexican nationals who crossed the international border pushing shopping carts filled with blankets and food.

Leo Parras, general manager of the civic center, said almost 2,000 persons filled the auditorium Thursday night. He said the American Red Cross had furnished blankets, food, medical facilities, doctors and nurses and even baby bottles and diapers for the refugees.

Dozens of children, screaming and yelling excitedly, raced across the civic center floor.

But Parras seemed undisturbed by the noise. He said he had two diabetics and at least one cardiac patient in the auditorium.

"We're plenty prepared," Parras said. "We have at least a couple of women expecting babies at any time — there's a theory that hurricanes tend to speed up delivery."

Absentee Balloting Draws Seven Voters

Only seven persons have cast absentee ballots in the Sept. 10 $1.8 million municipal bond election.

Absentee balloting closes Tuesday at 5 p.m. City hall where balloting takes place will be closed on Monday in observance of Labor Day.

The bonds will provide funds for the construction of a two-story building and the renovation of the existing structure. The funds are expected to be adequate to meet city needs until 1990.

The $1.8 million package was recommended by a Municipal Facilities Capital Improvements Committee headed by Jim Taylor.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. on Sept. 10 at Wilson and Bowman Middle Schools.

Private Club Suggestions Coming From Commission

BY PAM TROBOY

Planning and Zoning Commissioners have tentatively agreed on their recommendation about the proposed private club ordinance.

Tuesday, the commission will officially act on the consensus gained during Thursday's four-hour long worksession. The recommendation will then be forwarded to the City Council for final action.

Discussing each point of the proposed law, commissioners decided to allow private clubs in Light Commercial districts as well as Retail and the Central Business District.

The LC and R zoning must be on contiguous tracts of 30 acres or more, however. Commissioners also clarified that contiguous will include streets and alleys or in other words, a four-corner shopping area will be treated as one retail district.

The entire city will be open to private clubs under the commission recommendation. Commissioners said they could not reasonably deny Preston Rd. such facilities since an existing private club (Willow Bend) is west of the thoroughfare.

OPENS CITY

The ordinance under consideration restricts private clubs to the area between Independence Parkway, Jupiter Road, Spring Creek Parkway and the southern city limits. If a retail district falls partially within the boundaries, it is considered as a part of the approved area.

Commissioners also agreed to measure the 1,000-foot distance from school, park, church or hospital in a straight line from the front door of the club to the property line of the protected facility.

As in the proposed ordinance, commissioners agreed to allow no more than two clubs in each 30-acre segment of a tract with no more than four in any location.

In an effort to insure that the two permits allowed in a district are not prematurely developed, the commission ruled that state liquor licenses must be obtained within six months if the restaurant intends to occupy an existing building and within 18 months if the restaurant will move to a new building.

65 PERCENT FOOD

Unchanged were provisions that 65 percent of gross receipts be derived from the sale of food, that the restaurant have a minimum of 125 seats with a minimum of 12 square feet per chair and that permits may be revoked at any time.

Commissioners also specifically forbade any drive-in to have a private club, although they failed to act on entertainment restrictions. The question was raised, but commissioners felt any problems could be controlled by later ordinances.

The commission also avoided making a recommendation of whether the ordinance should remain for specific use permits or be rewritten as a use right.

Richard Thompson pointed out that there is no reason to force someone who meets all the requirements to go through the six weeks of hearings necessary to obtain a permit. Hearings, he suggested, may make the club an emotional or political issue. He recommended that permits be granted for private clubs which cannot meet the standards but have extenuating circumstances.

REASONABLE REQUESTS

Opposing that idea, Jim Edwards said that with reasonable people on the council and commission it is reasonable to assume that all requests will be approved.

Assistant City Manager Al Douglas disagreed, noting that on land use questions it is reasonable to assume a reasonable request will be approved. Liquor, however, has nothing to do with the use of land. It is a moral and social issue, he said, and it is not reasonable to assume that each private club will go through.

The council will be asked to review the necessity for specific use permits.

Rio Grande Valley Flooding In Hurricane's Backlash

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — High tides, wind and rain from the edge of Hurricane Anita today whipped the lush Rio Grande Valley and flooded out coastal islands and peninsulas, cutting two small towns off from the mainland. But officials said the storm presented little danger.

The Cameron County (Brownsville) sheriff's department said five-foot tides flooded the salt flats which connect Port Isabel and Boca Chica, two small towns on islands east of Brownsville.

"We can't get out to Port Isabel because there is lots of water between here and there," said Deputy David Martinez. "There is four to five feet of water over the road and parts of the town."

"I'd say 75 per cent of the homes on the island are built on stilts and the rest are trailer houses. It's just too early to tell if there was any damage. Highway 4 to Boca Chica and Highway 100 to Port Isabel are still closed, but we'll probably get back out there today."

"Right now there is lots of wind and rain, but that's about it. The danger is over, but all our emergency offices are on standby. We sure got lucky last night."

Hurricane Anita drove its 155 mile per hour winds inland 135 miles south of Brownsville, and the sudden shift south "saved Brownsville's neck," one weather forecaster said.

Late Thursday Civil Defense Director Jack Goolsby leaned back in his chair, put his feet on his desk and relaxed for the first time in two days. At the time it was too early to say the danger was over, but he knew the Lower Rio Grande Valley had been spared, again, the devastation of a major hurricane.

"If it continues on a west-southwest track it looks like it will go in 100 miles south of us," Goolsby said. "If that occurs, we will get some rain and no more than gale winds. That, of course, is tempered by the fact that hurricanes are erratic."

Bootbackers Selling Balloons

The Bootbackers Club, supporters of the Plano Senior High School Planoettes Drill Team, will sell balloons at tonight's football game.

The ladies will be set up at the west entrance to the stadium.

Proceeds will be used to pay for the Planoettes pompoms.

Commissioner Zones Realigned

Paves Way For New Unitized Road Building System

Eying the possibility of a unitized road system, County Commissioners realigned the four commissioner precincts this week.

The rather unusual rearrangement gives Commissioner Chuck Frisk a tight nine-voting box precinct with virtually no county roads and divides the rest of the county into three almost equal geographic areas.

Commissioners were forced to make the changes due to huge population differences in their previous precincts. All commissioners now have approximately 14,000 registered voters residing in their new areas.

After many hours of deliberation, the commissioners agreed on the "tight Plano-split road" plan presented by County Judge Nathan E. White Jr. with the prospect of changing to a new road system whereby commissioners would share responsibility for road operations with the help of a county superintendent.

Commissioner Frisk, who suggested the innovative unitized road system, touted the new plan for an hour this week attempting to convince fellow commissioners of the plan's merits.

All commissioners eventually seemed to agree with Frisk after being assured that the responsibilities to be held by the county road superintendent would not usurp any of the commissioners' power.

But since the unitized road system was not an item on the special meeting's agenda, the court was unable to vote on it this week. It is expected to be put on the agenda for the commissioners' Sept. 12 meeting.

Under the new precinct arrangement, most Planoites living on the westside of the city will be represented in county business by Frisk (Precinct 4). Commissioner Bailey Dickerson's first precinct also covers some west Plano voters.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Bay Sellers holds several east Plano voting boxes but Frisk's territory also covers portions of that part of town. Precinct 3 Commissioner Wallace Webb is the only commissioner whose precinct covers no part of Plano.

Also at this week's special meeting, some dormant justice of the peace and constable precincts were consolidated and plans were made to elect two justices rather than just one from the McKinney and Plano areas.

Because of increased population, McKinney will elect j.p.'s from Places 1 and 2 in 1978 and Plano's j.p. precinct 5 will elect two justices in 1979.

Plano Experiences Move Westward

(Editor's Note: Earlier this summer, M-PF Research Inc. presented an analysis of Plano's retail trade potential to the Plano Chamber of Commerce. The study was commissioned by the chamber, with the financial assistance of the City of Plano and Plano Independent School District, in late 1976.

The following article is the second in a series drawing from the 50-page report). Historically, Dallas' building activity has been concentrated in North Dallas and later in Dallas' northern suburbs. The City of Dallas first affected Richardson, then moved further north to Plano.

At the time of the 1970 U.S. Census, nearly three-quarters of Plano's population lived to the east of Central Expwy. Since that time the great bulk of housing activity has been concentrated in the western part of the city.

In 1970 this westward expansion had just begun to cross Custer Rd. and was largely confined to an area bounded on the North by FM 544, on the south by Dallas North Pkwy. and on the west by Custer Rd.

By 1973, the city's growth had moved westward along both sides of FM 544 to a point just short of Coit Rd. and the limit of the Spring Creek Basin.

With westerly expansion stopped there by the ultimate reach of the sewer system, the main thrust of growth was diverted northward along Custer Rd. and thence to the west along Park Blvd. and Parker Rd. in turn.

A result of this expansion (and undoubtedly adding impetus to it) is the development on the westside of several significant retail areas—the Plano General Hospital, and perhaps most importantly, the new Plano Senior High School.

The completion of the White Rock sewer will allow growth to the west to resume, though probably not with the velocity that was evidenced in the 1971-73 period.

In 1976, Plano recorded building permits for 2,222 single-family homes, the city's highest total ever. This level of activity accounts for Plano being the leader of all cities in the Dallas Metropolitan Area in single-family building activity.

Plano has shown very consistent gains in homebuilding since 1967. An annual decline was registered in 1973 when 1,482 homes were authorized (as compared to 1,490 the previous year) and in 1975 when the level of activity showed a decrease of 282 single-family units from the previous year.

That Plano experienced an increase of 60 percent in home authorizations in 1976 over the previous year is evidence of the extremely strong growth the city is experiencing. It is important to realize that this dramatic increase was registered during a year which saw homebuilding in Dallas County increase by only 25 percent.

Only 1,874 multi-family units have been authorized in the past 10 years in Plano and only 242 of these were approved in the past three years.

As long as occupancy levels remain in Plano's historical range of 80 to 90 percent, it is doubtful that any significant degree of new building will occur.

Based on the level of ac-

NEW YORK (UPI) — Teenage girls with contact lenses are 50 per cent more likely to wear them every day than girls who use only spectacles, according to a survey of 1,300 girls, age 13 to 19.

The contact lens wearers also report longer use each day. Exclusive eyeglass wearers average 8.6 hours of wear a day, while vision for the contact lens wearers is corrected an average of 14.3 hours daily — 5.7 hours longer.

The study was conducted for Bausch and Lomb.

tivity occurring thus far in 1977, single-family authorizations in Plano are projected to reach 2,100 by year-end.

The City of Plano may essentially be considered as sub-markets—east Plano and west Plano.

An examination of housing activity gives evidence to this point. Currently, only nine of the total 87 single-family subdivisions in Plano are located east of Central Expwy., whereas 78 are located in the west sector, west of the expressway.

Investigation of home absorption in Plano occurring over the past four quarters provides a clearer perspective of the east and west demarcation of the city.

Over the past year, home absorptions in west Plano have accounted for 85 percent or better of the total absorptions in Plano. During the second quarter of 1977, west Plano captured 90 percent of the home market. (Tomorrow, part three of this series will discuss the current retail trade in Plano.)

On Mixed Drinks

Cities Profit From Tax

Comptroller Bob Bullock said today that the state tax on mixed drinks has generated over $156 million in revenue for the state, cities and counties since its inception six years ago.

An analysis of the mixed drink gross receipts tax was included in the Comptroller's August monthly financial statement.

The mixed drink tax analysis shows that $45.1 million of the $156 million in revenues raised by the tax from 1971 through 1976 went to city and county governments for general spending, Bullock said.

Some $23.4 million of the revenue has gone to the 190 Texas counties that have mixed drink establishments within their boundaries. City shares of the revenue for the six-year period totaled $21.7 million.

Mixed drink permittees are taxed at a rate of 10 percent of their gross receipts from mixed drink sales. The Comptroller's Office, on a quarterly basis, remits to the counties and cities 15 percent of the tax collected within their boundaries.

The August financial statement reports that state revenues for June totaled $702.8 million, raising the fiscal year-to-date total to $5.9 billion. June expenditures totaled $462.7 million, for a fiscal year-to-date total of $5.5 billion.

State revenues for the first 10 months of fiscal 1977 are 13 percent higher than a year ago, Bullock pointed out, while total expenditures during the same period are 4 percent ahead of the previous fiscal year.

The Comptroller said the state closed its books at the end of June with a $1.7 billion cash balance.

Jack Ford Starts Writing

By ANN LO LORDO
United Press International
Former President Gerald R. Ford and wife, Betty, are busy writing books at their Vail, Colo., home. Photojournalist daughter, Susan, continues to pound the pavement with cameras slung over her shoulder and notebook in hand.

And now son Jack, 25, is cranking out copy in a bare cubicle office in Los Angeles for a new environmental magazine, "Outside," the brainchild of Rolling Stone wunderkind Jann S. Wenner.

"It's all very unglamorous," Ford said. "I dress in a pair of tennis shoes, corduroys and a comfortable shirt and hunt and peck my way at a manual typewriter."

Hired as assistant to the publisher at a salary of about $500 a week, Ford views the position as "a chance to get in on the ground floor."

What does an assistant to the publisher do?
"Right now he learns,"

Ford said. "I'm very self-conscious about writing. I'm very hesitant about it. There are a lot of highly experienced people working on this project."

Ford will cover all sides of the operation from feature-length articles to wining and dining advertisers and distributors.

"It's a learning process for me. Obviously, I'm not a professional publisher or writer, but I feel I've really lived this magazine," he said.

Ford, a forestry and recreation graduate from Utah State University, has planned his first full-length feature on a year spent as a forest ranger in Yellowstone National Park.

Released from the roving eye of the secret service, Ford enjoys his freedom. "I walk down the street, look over my shoulder and see that nobody's there and I sort of kick my heels and pat myself on the back," he said.

Ford's first stab at anonymity occurred on a wilderness trip to Minnesota. He stopped to buy groceries at a local store and paid for them with a check. "The woman said let me take this to the manager," Ford said. "The next thing I know two guys are grabbing me by the arm for impersonating Jack Ford. It took two hours of phone calls to Washington before the police believed that I was Jack Ford."

Ford, frequently seen about town with various female celebrities, denies rumors that he is a playboy. "That's some other story, some other magazine," Ford said. "It would be disillusioning if anyone knew the truth. I haven't kissed a girl in the last six months," he joked.

Young Actors Help Peers

Work Out Problems

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — "Hello, what's your name? I'm Celeste. I like drinking and dope. Do you like having a good time?"

"I'm Lorna. I like older men."

For adults (specially for an "older man") it's a little disconcerting to have pretty teen-agers in jeans and T-shirts sit beside you in a theater before the show and start up such conversations.

But for teen-agers in the audience, such contacts — in which they are subtly encouraged to talk about themselves — can be the first step towards facing up to and solving their problems: sex, parents, school, dope.

"Jasmine" and "Kandy" are two of 14 young characters in "Inside-Out: a View of Teenage Life," an improvisational work by the Family Life Theatre, part of the Family Life Division of New York Medical College. They are not the actors' real names, and the girls do not have the hang-ups they describe.

"Inside-Out" dramatizes the various kinds of problems facing teen-agers today. Its sketches cover teen-age problems from child-beating through homosexuality to drink, drugs and promiscuous parents. The teen-age actors — considered more likely than adults actors to gain rapport with their peers in the audience — are picked by audition from high school students throughout New York City.

The theater was developed by Dr. Maria Boria, director of the Family Life Division, as an educational tool in the division's health care program for adolescents.

"Its purpose," she says, "is to get through to kids who don't respond to traditional teaching methods."

The man who put "Inside-Out" together is Ted Welch, consultant in the adolescent program. He picks the cast, directs the show and even takes the only adult role in it, as a schoolteacher.

The young actors are tutored in their roles by TV soap opera stars and given training in psychological counseling, which they put to use in talks with the teen-age audiences before and after the show. They worked out the sketches in the show themselves, with Welch's help, and improvise changes each night to work in items they've got from their chats with the audience. (That's why they had a "bald-headed guy" line in it the night I attended.)

"Inside-Out" usually is presented to academic and mental health audiences by invitation. It premiered in April at the Mental Retardation Institute conference on sexuality and youth in Valhalla, N.Y. Since then it has played in various kinds of auditoriums and once on a Harlem rooftop, to audiences of teen-agers, adults, senior citizens and even preteens.

Every performance is followed by a question-and-answer period, and then the audience and cast mingle for what can be the most important part of the evening. The counseling consists partly of telling teenagers and parents — but only when they ask — what help is available and where.

No easy solutions are suggested.

The show, after the actors have introduced themselves, consists of four sections: a number of blackout scenes between parents and teen-agers about a party that evening; a classroom discussion of sex in which the students know more about the subject than their substitute teacher; the teen-agers interacting at the party; and their reception when they return home late at night.

Welch said some of the young actors "originally were a bit up-tight" about the show, but soon became enthusiastic. Some are would-be actors, but not all.

"Inside-Out" was shown to the general public for the first time in August, giving 15 performances in the basement Theatre XII in a UkrainianPolish section of the Lower East Side of Manhattan.

Rene Lesper, 16, one of the actors, explained: "There is no such thing as happy endings. We're only here to show the problem."

Tiny Daisy Rodriguez added, "If you see there's a problem, and there's enough love, well, you'll do something about it."

(Information on the Family Life Theatre can be obtained from Edward Welch or Anthony Vargas, Family Life Division, New York Medical College, 1249 Fifth Avenue, Room R-519, New York NY 10029.)

Plants Water Needs Vary

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The types of plants you select, and where you plant them, can make a difference in the amount of water needed for successful gardening, says Don Janssen. For example, flower and vegetable varieties that tolerate shade need less frequent watering. Leafy vegetables such as lettuce usually need more water than root crops such as beets or carrots. He recommends grouping vegetables with similar water needs together to make maximum use of watering times. To conserve water even more, use it twice, Janssen said. Water from air-conditioners or dehumidifiers can be used in the garden as well, says Janssen, a horticulture specialist at the institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. You can also reuse safely the water saved from melted frost in your refrigerator, Janssen said. Most vegetables need only about an inch of moisture a week, Janssen said. He said a thorough soaking weekly is better than several shallow soakings. It encourages deep roots to help plants better withstand drought. Instead of an overhead sprinkler, Janssen recommends soaker hoses turned upside down and trickle irrigation systems. Forty per cent more water is used with an overhead sprinkler than with a trickle system, he said, mostly through evaporation. Trickle systems are more expensive than soaker hoses, he added. He calls mulching a water-saving technique that gives double your money's worth: mulches of leaf mold, wood chips or loosely-applied lawn clippings stay open and porous, conserving water and discouraging weeds. But mulches of finely-textured peat moss or sewage sludge will compact and form a surface crust that prevents water from soaking into the soil, he said. Even a layer of newspaper or a sheet of black plastic (polyethylene) laid between plants or rows in a vegetable garden helps conserve water by slowing evaporation. Big water loss occurs in a garden by watering when you water not only the plants, but the soil in wide areas between rows, he said. "Give the water some guidance," he suggests. "A bottomless tin can or clay tile sunk into the ground next to the plant cuts down on water use. You can pour water into the can or tile and the moisture is channeled directly down to the root system."

ASK DOC GARD'NER

by NEIL SPERRY

Dear Doc: What are the white fuzzy balls on our live oak? Are they harmful? Are they asps?

If they're affixed, they're insect galls. Tiny insects have stung the trees and laid eggs. In response, the tree forms the gall on which the larvae feed. There are hundreds of gall-causing insects, many common in Texas. Few do any serious damage. There's also no way of easy control chemically, since the adults are highly mobile and since our chemicals have short residual periods.

Dear Doc: How come malathion won't kill mealy bugs? We've sprayed our coleus twice a month all summer and they're still covered.

You're not spraying often enough. Mealy bugs often protect their young with their bodies, so sprays never reach them. Wait two weeks and the young will have young, and you'll really not gain much. Use 7-10 day intervals and spray every other time with diazinon to keep the bugs from becoming immune to any one pesticide.

Dear Doc: Can you list a good reference book for plants for landscapes in North Texas?

Sunset's Western Garden Book, available at many book stores or by writing Lane Publishing Co., Menlo Park, Calif. ($7.95) is about the best. Though written for western states, it is broadly translatable to Texas terms.

Dear Doc: Is it too late to spray for grub worms in our lawn? How many sprays will we need?

If your lawn is running into grub worm problems or has a history of infestations, better get with the diazinon or dursban, followed by a heavy watering. Both sprays and granules are effective. Choose the one that's most convenient for you. Only one application is generally needed, but you'll have better luck in the future if you'll make the application around August 1.

Dear Doc: Our rose buds aren't opening properly. They'll get about full size, but the edges of the petals turn brown and crisp and the buds don't develop any further. Please suggest remedy.

Heat will cause deformity which should disappear come fall. You'll also want to check the centers of the buds for thrips. These tiny insects look like pale slivers scooting all through the flowers. You may want a magnifying glass for positive identification. If you find a population of these "suckers", spray with any general rose insect spray. If thrips aren't present, check for wet or dry soil, weed killers, too much fertilizer, or some other soil problem.

Dear Doc: Our St. Augustine has gradually faded away. Leaves are yellow and appear speckled. What shall we do?

Your grass quite possibly has St. Augustine Decline (SAD), a virus disease that has plagued South Texas lawns for several years and has been reported in North Texas for some 5 years now. There's not much you can do except fertilize and water the remaining grass. Replant with bermudagrass or with the surviving resistant runners. Floratam, the new SAD-resistant strain, is not hardy to our North Texas cold. And don't loan your mower to friends - that's how the disease spreads.

Dear Doc: We have a spot in our yard where grass just won't grow. We've tried St. Augustine and bermuda and plenty of water. It's in full sun. Suggestions?

You might check for building debris, shallow soil, overwatering, and gas leaks. You might also check for fertilizer accumulations by having a soil test run. It's definitely a cultural problem of some sort.

Dear Doc: The drought is really taking its toll on our pecan crop. We've watered and watered, but the nuts just keep falling. Could the tree also need some food?

I doubt it. And the drought probably isn't totally responsible for all your problems. If the shucks have black spots or are entirely black, pecan scab disease is the problem. The kernels inside the affected nuts will also be black and deteriorated. You'll have to spray several times for control - once when the leaves are emerging, again in late May, and again in mid August.

Dear Doc: When should we sow pansy seeds for next winter?

All the spring annuals, including pansies, pinks, snapdragons, and calendulas, should be sown indoors or on your patio in seed flats, and now's the time. Transplant the small seedlings into small pots and they'll be ready for transplanting into beds within 6 or 8 weeks.

Write your gardening questions to Doc Gard'ner in care of this newspaper and watch for a speedy reply!

Four Approaches To Buy Fertilizer

It appears there are four basic approaches to fertilizer buying in North Texas...

By guess and buy golly, otherwise known as fertilizer roulette. Frustrated gardeners turn first to this method. They plan for their plant food to cure all past sins, such as drought, bugs and diseases that went undetected. Throw out some plant food to green it all up, that's the idea. It really doesn't matter what's in the bag. It's more the idea that at least you've done something. Sort of a responsibility of living.

Now obviously this isn't the way. Fertilizing plants is more of a science. There's mathematics and chemistry to consider. Read on a bit farther.

Brand-on-the-bag believe it or not, the most conspicuous sign on the bag is probably also the least important information you'll find there. Brand names tell only the manufacturing company. They do n't tell the bag's content, nor to help in price comparison shopping. In short, the fellow who buys by the brand buys on blind faith alone. Please keep on reading.

How much does it cost? If we fed our families like some folks feed plants, we'd all eat corn meal and beans, the cheaper the better. It merely says that there's still more to look for, so read on.

Every product sold in our state with claims of improving soil fertility must, by law, state percentage content of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash respectively. Knowing that nitrogen promotes leaf growth, phosphorus promotes root, flower and fruit growth and potassium improves cold and heat hardiness makes choice of an appropriate fertilizer easier.

Once you've decided what type of fertilizer you need, be it "high nitrogen," balanced "analysis," "superphosphate" or whatever, you're ready for price comparison shopping. You can get a rough comparison of prices between two similar fertilizers by adding up the three percentages, multiplying by the number of pounds of fertilizer in the bag (to get pounds of actual fertilizer contained) and dividing that number of pounds into the total price paid, for a price per actual pound of fertilizer.

When Supply Is Low

Lawns Survive With Less Water

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — When water is in short supply, people should think twice before hauling out the garden hose and sprinkler, says Bob Shearman.

The extension turf specialist at the University of NebraskaLincoln says lawns and yards account for nearly 40 per cent of domestic water use.

A healthy, green lawn needs about one and one-half inches of water per week, Shearman says. Diseased lawns and lawns with insect problems may need more. In years of shortages, he says: "You can still keep a respectable-looking lawn with limited water, however, if you use the water you have wisely."

It's best to avoid watering on windy days or during the heat of the day when most water will be lost to evaporation.

Early morning water usually gives best results, Shearman said.

He said a lawn will do better with less water if it is prepared. "A lush, actively growing lawn that is suddenly deprived of water will suffer a great deal and may even die."

He suggests helping prepare a lawn for a drier spell by giving it enough fertilizer to maintain growth sufficient to recover injured areas or fill thinned parts.

Mowing higher during warm weather also helps. The height of the cut should be lowered in spring and fall, he said. Lawns also should be cut fairly often so that no more than one-third of the grass blade is cut off. Otherwise, desirable root growth is lost.

A few good soakings a week are better than a lot of little sprinkles, he said. Less frequent but heavier waterings encourage deeper root growth so grass is better able to withstand dry weather.

Shearman said aerifying, or making tiny holes on the lawn in spring or fall, also is advisable in dry times. It helps water soak in and encourages deeper root systems. Up to two inches of water is the maximum needed for a hot, windy week, he said, one inch usually will do fine.

To measure the amount of water a lawn is getting, set a can in the sprinkler's area and turn the sprinkler off when the water reaches the inch needed.

Even an inch of water is too much if it starts to run off the soil. "Apply water only as fast as the soil can take it in without any wasted runoff," Shearman said.

A lawn usually doesn't need watering until it turns a dark blue-green, and when footprints remain when you walk across it. If most of the lawn still looks green and only spots near concrete areas are grey, rootwater or hand water just the dry spots, he added.

He recommends either a soaker or a two-pronged aerator on the garden hose for watering. But if a sprinkler is used, one that throws large drops of water in a flat pattern is more effective than one with a fine, high spray.

"The latter lose too much water to the wind, putting water where you don't want it," Shearman said.

Correct Care Insures Blooms

Despite the recent hot summer weather, roses can produce prize-winning blooms all season long with the proper care.

First of all, fertilize the plants each month, says James R. Risinger, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Check for iron deficiency, too. It shows up as yellowing leaves with green markings along the ribs and veins. You can correct the problem by applying iron chelate or iron sulfate, either as a foliar spray or dry material directly to the soil.

Proper watering, of course, is fundamental since summer rains are usually scarce. Water roses thoroughly each week but try not to wet plant foliage—this can lead to fungus disease.

Maintain a regular spray program for protection against black spot, a fungal leaf disease. Also watch for insects. Garden pests such as aphids and spider mites are usually common summer rose insects and can be controlled with malathion or diazinon. For good coverage, spray in early morning or late afternoon when wind is calm.

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service

The Backyard Gardner

Each spring, after the weather has warmed up and the nights are no longer cold, I have a grand time planning the opulent decoration of our patio area with all our houseplants.

An asparagus fern cascades down by the picnic table. Various ivies and Wandering Jew fall from hanging planters to set off geranium blooms. Coleus and caladium brighten lightly shaded corners of the patio and ferns are placed beneath the light shade of our honey locust tree.

Any tree that gives light shade and has no low branches provides an ideal spot for house plants, with the shade-loving ones, like ferns, going closest to the base.

One houseplant I particularly like to place outdoors to set off lower-growing foliage and flowering plants is the Sansevieria, with its stately spikes so attractive, the variegated green set off on each blade with an outer band of yellow on my favorite variety.

These houseplants, of course, are kept in their pots and plunged into the soil up to their rims. Otherwise, they would develop free outdoor root systems which would make them impossible to repot and bring indoors in the fall. During the summer the pots can be turned regularly to prevent errant roots from sneaking out the bottom drainage holes and taking hold.

This time outdoors is for the houseplant a summer holiday, a time to gather up their strength and energies after the wearing months indoors in artificial conditions. Now, in a nice sheltered spot with light conditions suited exactly to them, the plants can stretch and breathe and prepare for the fall, when they will be brought indoors again. Given good summer care — watering, preventive spraying against pests, judicious pruning for shapely growth and regular applications of fertilizer — they should be in good shape to add to the indoor decor of the house after summer is over.

Depending on the climate of your area, you will be thinking about bringing in your plants anywhere from mid-August to the end of September. At any rate, they must be brought in well before frost. It is wise to apply a spray against insect pests, place the pots in a protected spot or on a porch for a week or so, then spray again.

It is also wise to lift the plants from their pots, disturbing the roots as little as possible, and repotting in a freshly scrubbed pot which has been soaked in a weak bleach solution, and rinsed. Most plants will not need a larger pot, unless you see that the roots are very crowded and wrapped around the ball of soil. A very common error is to give a plant too large a pot, which it will not thrive in, most plants preferring rather cozy quarters.

Special care must be given to the houseplants newly brought in from the outdoors. They will be inclined to resent the dry, close air of the house after their holiday outside. They might even begin dropping leaves and blossoms in disgust.

You might need to keep the house rather cooler than usual for a while in deference to their tastes, and take each plant to the kitchen sink daily for a nice refreshing bath under the faucet — with the water at room temperature, of course. Cold water could send them into shock.

Sponges have a sour smell

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for dieters who find themselves eating too many between-meals snacks. Try brushing your teeth with a mint flavored toothpaste every time you get the urge to eat and find those fattening snacks are a little less appealing.

My Problem concerns my kitchen sponges that get sour smelling too quickly. I have tried rinsing them more carefully and also using a bit of bleach on them when they become sour but nothing seems to help. Any suggestions? —DEBBIE.

DEAR DEBBIE — I put my sponges in the silverware basket of the dishwasher and wash them with the dishes. Push them down so there is no danger of them escaping. I am sure the readers will be coming up with their own pet ways for keeping them clean and sweet smelling, too. —POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — When baking a cake with a mix I grease the cake pan and then flour it with a bit of the dry cake mix. This saves opening the flour cannister and I have never had a cake stick. —VIRGINIA.

DEAR POLLY — Do you want a dog toy that costs nothing, is useful and still unbreakable? The next time you have a sirloin steak or arm roast save the ring shaped bone. Attach this to a length of rope or twisted cloth and you'll find it dandy for playing tug-of-war and your dog will love it. — REGINA.

DEAR POLLY — The fisherman can easily preserve that extra catch for later by inserting the cleaned whole trout or other small fish in a clean empty milk carton, fill it with water and then freeze solid. When ready to cook the fish simply cut away the paper carton and defrost the block of ice. The fish will seem as fresh as when first caught and will keep indefinitely as long as it is frozen in the ice.

My other Pointer is for moving day. Go to your local liquor store and get empty cartons that have the bottle dividers intact. Glasses, vases and other miscellaneous articles can be packed in these sections and will survive the move beautifully. Often they fit snugly enough so they do not have to be wrapped but always wrap individually when more than one thing goes in a section. I have done this on numerous occasions and found it really works. —ANN.

DEAR ANN — So have I and when the dividers are removed these sturdy cartons are great to use for packing plates when they are wrapped in paper and put in so they stand on edge — never flat — and put in so they are snug and cannot rattle around. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — If you need a funnel in a hurry and do not want to ruin your good one cut away half of a plastic bleach bottle and use the top half for a funnel that can then be discarded. —MRS. V.V.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

ASTRO-GRAF

Bernice Bede Osol

Sept. 3, 1977

Don't become discouraged if your big plans encounter a few early snags this coming year. They'll survive sidetracking and come out fine in the long run.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a possibility that you haven't learned the lesson you should have from a painful experience. Today you may repeat the same type of mistake. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's not a good day to seek favors or to borrow from a friend. If you do get what you want, chances are it'll have sticky strings attached to it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Share this evening with friends whose love and warmth you enjoy. The company of a good book is superior to associating with cold, unemotional companions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Duties left unattended will weigh heavily on you today. Do what you should do, even if it's not your first choice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're better off today passing up an affair where you'd have to cater to the boss's wife or clients you don't appreciate. No good will come of it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If entertaining at home today, don't put your guests in a position where they have to arbitrate a domestic issue. They may not take your side.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Normally you're extremely thoughtful in dealing with persons in all walks of life. Today, however, you may treat those under you demeaningly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful today that someone doesn't try to use you to gain her own ends. Her methods are slick enough that you could be caught unawares.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a possibility today of a family flare-up over an old problem. Your best bet is to bury it again quickly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Negative thinking could be your worst enemy today. You should be looking for sunshine and a silver lining.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unless you're very careful today the folly of a friend could cost you money. If you're operating in tandem, choose your companions wisely.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Use only methods that you're proud of in going after what you want today. Back-street tactics won't help your cause or your image.

Europa stamps are released by the member countries of the conference of European Postal and Telecommunications Administration which was established at Montreux, Switzerland, in 1959. The theme chosen for 1977 CEPT design is scenic landscape.

The first of the Irish stamps shows Ballynahinch, Connemara, Co. Galway—a beautiful region guarded by the Twelve Bens mountain range and offering some of the finest salmon and trout fishing in Ireland.

Vines Sophs Tied, 6-6

Vikings Fail To Score Late

Vines High School's Viking sophomore football team failed to score from the one-yard line with less than a minute to play in a 6-6 tie with Richardson Lake Highlands "B" team Thursday.

Vines reached the one-yard line on a drive of 26 yards following a pass interception by defensive back Randy Jamson. However, with only 50 seconds on the clock, Vines running back Jeff Albertson fumbled on a fourth down scoring attempt from the one-yard line.

Vines seemed destined to win the season opener played by the sophomores at old Wildcat Stadium. The Vikings possessed a first down at the three-yard line but couldn't punch the ball over the goal line on back-to-back attempts by Albertson and quarterback Brett Brittain.

That late opportunity to score was only one of five muffed chances the Vikings had in their 6-6 tie.

Early in the second quarter, the Vikings drove 46 yards to the 28-yard line but the series ended on a fumble in the handoff from Brittain to one of his running backs.

Midway through the second period, Vines again mounted a sustained drive of 56 yards to the four-yard line. The drive was highlighted by a pass of 31 yards to Stone Youngblood from Brittain plus the running of Eric Waterman and Albertson. However, the drive stalled at the four-yard line by just inches shy of a first down.

Lake Highlands took over but fumbled the ball to Viking defensive tackle Jim Sprague at the eight-yard line. The Viking offense received a penalty of five yards on their first play to send them packing to the 13-yard mark.

Then, Waterman fumbled the ball away on the ensuing play and once again Vines messed up on a keen opportunity to score.

In the fourth quarter, Vines appeared to have scored the go-ahead touchdown but receiver Brett Attaway was ruled out of the endzone on a fine 13-yard toss from Brittain. That fourth down play ended a drive of 45 yards that was highlighted by a 26-yard pass from Brittain to Chuck Best plus a 14-yard pass to Attaway.

Vines came from behind to score their only six-pointer. Lake Highlands had scored in the second period following the fumble by Waterman on a 90-yard breakaway. However, the Wildcats missed on their PAT for a 6-0 edge at half-time.

In the second half, a fired up Viking squad scored early in the fourth stanza on a six-yard scamper by quarterback Brittain to tie the contest at 6-6. However, on the attempted PAT by Rick Silk, the football sailed wide of the uprights to leave the score knotted.

Coach Roger Ezell's Vikings will play again Sept. 7 against Dallas Bryan Adams at 6 p.m. The game is scheduled for the new football-soccer stadium in Northwest Plano.

Mississippi State, North Texas

Open Football Seasons Saturday

By ANDREW REESE

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Anxious to live up to its lofty preseason billing, Mississippi State takes on tough North Texas State Saturday in the 1977 curtain raiser for both teams.

The Bulldogs, led by quarterback Bruce Threadgill and star running back Dennis Johnson, went 9-2 last year and are hoping to be even better this fall. They have been picked among the top contenders in the Southeastern Conference in most preseason polls.

North Texas State, an independent, is looking for its third straight winning season under coach Hayden Fry after going 7-4 in 1975 and 6-5 last year. The Eagles came within a hair of spoiling Mississippi State's 1976 opener, losing 7-0 in the final minutes on a 31-yard scoring pass from Threadgill to split end Robert Chatman.

"We have the utmost respect for North Texas State," Bulldog coach Bob Tyler said. "On a given Saturday they may be as good as any team that will come to Mississippi this year."

A crowd of about 30,000 is expected for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff at MSU's Scott Field with the Bulldogs tabbed as 9-point favorites. Threadgill, a 185-pound senior, will be beginning his third year in a starting role for the Bulldogs. He racked up 1,321 yards in total offense last year to finish fourth in the SEC and was the team's third-ranking rusher with 554 yards on 160 carries. He hit 45 of 89 passes for 807 yards and seven touchdowns.

Johnson, a 235-pound fullback, led the Bulldogs in rushing in 1976 with 859 yards on 152 carries. Joining him in the starting backfield will be a pair of speedy sophomores, Len Copeland and James Jones.

The Eagles — who like to call themselves the "Mean Green" — have two capable quarterbacks in Ken Washington and Ken Smith, both seniors, with Washington expected to draw the starting assignment on Saturday. Washington rushed for 395 yards last year and connected on 45 of 95 passes for 587 yards.

Like the Bulldogs, North Texas State has a fleet of talented running backs including senior Mike Jones, who paced the team in rushing in 1976 with 411 yards on 86 carries despite missing four games with injuries. Others in the probable starting backfield are veteran fullback Billy Cox and flanker Tim Loftin.

Sports Briefs

Bartkowski Ready For Practice

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — A team spokesman said Atlanta Falcons' quarterback Steve Bartkowski, fitted with a knee brace in New York Thursday, should be ready to resume training next week.

Bartkowski will not play in Monday's exhibition game against the Kansas City Chiefs. Kim McQuilken will start in his place, the spokesman said.

ROCHESTER, Mich. (UPI) — The Detroit Lions Thursday acquired soccer-style kicker Steve Mike-Mayer from the San Francisco 49ers.

The Lions cut defensive back Reggie Pinkney, a sixth-round draft choice, and free agent Tim Anderson to make room for Mike-Mayer on the roster.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Reserve strong forward Mike Sojourner will miss the Atlanta Hawks' training camp startup set for later this month because of a broken kneecap suffered in a recent pickup basketball game.

Hawks' officials said the 6-9 Sojourner is not expected to resume workouts until mid-November.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Both sides in the National Basketball Association referees' contract dispute are still far apart but the situation hasn't gotten to point where standby referees will have to be alerted in the event the conflict is not resolved by Sept. 18, when the training camps open.

The officials' two-year contract ended earlier this season but their lawyer, Richard Phillips of Philadelphia, and deputy NBA Commissioner Simon Gourdin haven't been able to agree on a new one despite summer-long negotiations.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A decision on whether the St. Louis Stars of the North American Soccer League will move to another city for the 1978 season will come late next week, team President Ted Martin said.

Season Debut

JV Wins Big, 43-0

BY BILL LAROE

Coach Ken Hardison and his Plano Senior High Junior Varsity football team started their 1977 season big last night with a 43-0 win over the Denison High School Junior Varsity Gold team at Wildcat Field.

The 'Cats took their first possession and on a 25-yard fake punt run by junior Mason Mitchell were in scoring position on Denison's 19 yard line. Mitchell then took the hand off from junior quarterback Joe Simpson and carried it down to the two-yard line. Three plays later, junior halfback Raymond McNeme broke through the line from one-yard out for the first score. The point after was blocked.

Denison could not sustain a drive and once again punted to the 'Cats. With 0:27 left in the first quarter, the Wildcats once again capitalized on good field position with McNeme scoring on a 38-yard run. The score was made 14-0 on a two-point conversion run by junior back Mark McQuay.

Denison took the kick and with 0:22 left in the first quarter, fumbled it to the Wildcats on their own 21-yard line.

The ball was given to Mitchell, who scored the 'Cats' third touchdown in as many possessions. With 11:07 left in the first half, Plano led 21-0.

Denison was forced to give up the ball to the 'Cats, who scored again on a 53-yd off tackle run by Mitchell.

Ten minutes later, Junior Hans Mansion added a 38-yard field goal to the score making it 30-0 at the half.

The second half started with another long touchdown run by Mitchell, this time 59 yards off tackle making the score 37-0.

The Wildcats final score came on a 13-yard run interception return by Mansion who picked off a pass from the Denison quarterback.

The 'Cats totaled over 260 yards offense against Denison all on the ground. While the offense was busy scoring points the defense was also busy getting the ball for the offense.

Plano's brick-wall defense allowed Denison less than 125 yards total offense throughout the game and caused a total of eight turnovers: two fumbles and six intercepted passes.

Penalties also plagued Denison during the game which also helped the Cats to their easy victory.

The Junior Varsity's next contest will be against the Dallas Kimball junior team at the new stadium, next Thursday.

Ramond McNeme, 29, and his Plano Senior High Junior Varsity football team mates made easy work of Denison's Gold team Thursday. The Wildcat JV clobbered Denison 43-0 in the season opener for both teams at old Wildcat Stadium. (Staff Photo by Mike Newman).

TCU Horned Frogs:

'We are out to win this year. We have gaps on this ball club, but so does everybody else.'

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — F.A. Dry, who believes in discipline and doesn't have much for use for anybody who doesn't think the same way, is fond of challenges.

And that is nice since the challenge Dry has at TCU is about as big as they come.

The Texas Christian Horned Frogs, as has been well advertised during the past few years, always seem to be in trouble. They own the nation's longest major college losing streak — 11 games.

That goes with the nation's longest losing streak of 20 games TCU compiled in 1974-75. All of that adds up to three wins in the past three seasons. And, for those who are counting, Dry is the sixth coach at TCU during the last 12 years.

"Around here," said one TCU athletic department official, "the fans don't get excited any more when we change coaches. This time they have a wait and see attitude."

"We are about the same or maybe even down on ticket sales. The Southwest Conference raised ticket prices to $8 a game and the people don't understand why our prices are higher if we have lost so many games."

Dry's job is to make people want to pay $8 a game to see the Horned Frogs and he has said often since he came from Tulsa University early this year that his first task has been to change the attitude of the players from a losing one to a winning one.

So how has he gone about that?

"We believe in working to correct things that we can do something about," said Dry. "If you can help an athlete make himself stronger and quicker and improve his endurance, then you give him confidence. And once the individuals begin to gain confidence, then the team as a whole gains confidence."

"And we are not going to say we are going to win next year or in three years. That is a defeatist attitude and we will never have that. We are out to win this year. We have gaps on this ball club, but so does everybody else."

Losing has become such a way of life at TCU that Dry likens the situation to the battle of the Alamo.

"It's like the seniors here have gone through the Alamo three times," said Dry. "And what we are going to have to face soon is how much of what we are telling them are they believing."

"This is the one big question I have."

"When we suffer that first fumble, or that first penalty or that first interception, are they going to rally around and get after it or are they going to say to themselves 'here comes the same old story.'"

"That's where we as coaches come in because it is not going to be the same old story at TCU. We are going to be a whole lot less tolerant of mistakes here than in the past."

"If a kid comes off that field with his head down he is not going to be playing."

TCU has limited talent available to win with in Dry's first year. He has lured some junior college talent he originally recruited at Tulsa and he has one of the best pass catchers in the country in flanker Mike Renfro.

But after that there isn't much.

"We certainly aren't the type of team that can out-muscle anybody and we are critically thin at some positions and are going to have to depend on youngsters a lot for depth," said Dry.

"But we have a tough minded young man in Steve Bayuk as our No. 1 quarterback and we have Renfro."

So to be consistent on offense we may have to pass more than I ordinarily would like.

"We can't just use the pass at the end of the game. We are going to have to use it all day."

"And on defense we must play conservatively because we really can't let anybody loose in our secondary. We don't have the speed to run people down."

All of that adds up to a less than optimistic picture for the Horned Frogs. F.A. Dry comes to TCU with some high credentials, and they will certainly be put to the test.

UFO's View Earth For Over 30 Years

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — Thirty years ago a businessman piloting a private plane saw what he described as nine "saucer-like" objects flying near Mt. Rainier in Washington state.

So opened the era of the UFO — the Unidentified Flying Object, or flying saucer. An army of people who believe the Earth is being watched by visitors from outer space sprang into being. The pressure for an official statement became so great the U.S. Air Force launched three separate investigations into alleged sightings (1948, 1949, 1969) and the CIA one. In addition the Air Force asked the Rand Corporation to make an independent study.

In this 30th anniversary year of that first sighting, the magazine New Scientist, no respecter of wishful thinking, points out that the inquiries found almost all the incidents had perfectly natural explanations even in those cases where the circumstances were not clear-cut.

The magazine had its artist draw all the saucers which have been sighted two or more times, from the descriptions given by witnesses. There are 31 separate models — saucer-shaped, cigar-shaped, cross-shaped, cylinder-shaped and so on.

Stating that "many of the most cherished cases are now crashing to the ground" in the face of more rigorous examination by researchers, New Scientist gives the few still standing a hearty shove of its own.

"The crucial but overlooked point," it said, "is that there are simply too many UFO's being seen to support the extraterrestrial hypothesis. Imagine for a moment, that there are one million other civilizations in the galaxy, all sending out starships. Since there must be something like 10 billion interesting places to visit (one-tenth of all stars in the galaxy), then each civilization must launch 10,000 space ships annually for only one to reach here every year.

"If each civilization launches the more reasonable number of one starship annually then we would expect to be visited once in every 10,000 years."

It's conclusion: "Despite 30 years of study, the field of UFOlogy has failed to produce one concrete example of alien visitation, from any dimension."

The Bermuda Triangle also comes under New Scientist's skeptical eye in a section devoted to what it calls "parascience" — flying saucers, spoonbending a la Uri Geller and the alleged disappearance of hundreds of ships and planes and thousands of people in mysterious circumstances in the western Atlantic between Florida, Puerto Rico and Bermuda.

Conceding that phenomena for which conventional science has no answer carries an immense appeal for many people, an article in the magazine analyzes the cases frequently quoted and says most of them can be traced back to article in the magazine Argosy in 1964. Since then, says New Scientist, "like topsy they've just growed and growed."

Author Graham Massey says his checks with the U.S. Coast Guard and Lloyds of London indicate that the surprise of the Bermuda Triangle is not that so many ships and planes are lost there, but that so few are lost.

"The safety record of airliners in the Triangle is actually better than over the United States," he wrote.

Maestro Fiedler To Conduct DSO

For the fifth consecutive year Maestro Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the famed Boston Pops Orchestra, will appear in concert with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra to benefit Theatre Three.

The Gala Pops Concert will headline Theatre Three's Energy Ball '77 to be held September 16 in the Great Hall of the Apparel Mart.

This appearance will be one of a limited number of concert engagements Maestro Fiedler has accepted this year, according to Mrs. John J. Wilson, ball chairman.

Guest soloist for the evening will be pianist James Mathis, a native Dallasite. A graduate of the Juilliard School and winner of the Theodore Steinway Prize given by the National Federation of Music Clubs, he is currently associated with the American Institute of Musical Studies in Graz, Austria.

In addition to benefiting performing art, the ball provides an opportunity for Theatre Three to pay tribute to the oil industry of Texas and the Southwest.

"The theatre and the oil industry share a common spirit," said Jac Alder, producer-director of Theatre Three. "Both are entrepreneurs. Theatre Three sank its first shaft in an old seat cover garage in 1961 on a $3,000 budget. It now operates on a budget of a million dollars."

It is one of only two Actor's Equity-associated theatres in a five-state area (the other is The Alley Theatre in Houston).

Theatre Three is particularly allied to the oil industry in that its board of directors was founded by John Wisenbaker, chairman of the board of Core Laboratories.

Ticket information for the ball may be obtained by calling Theatre Three, 748-5191.

Can Texas Top This?

By United Press International
TARBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Can you top this, Texas? Watermelons the size of washtubs. Pumpkins as big as armchairs. Carrot-size peanuts. Volleyball-size tomatoes.

No brag, just fact. Edward Weeks can back it up.

He calls his watermelons "monster melons," and rightly so — they tend to grow to the size of washtubs.

In fact, the folks at Guinness Book of World Records in their 1978 edition have certified his 197-pound watermelon as the biggest grown in the world.

"Yep, the county agent and Congressman L.H. Fountain stood right here and weighed it on official scales," Weeks said proudly.

Somebody has made an attempt to steal some of Weeks' melons too, but dropped them in the field. "Too doggone heavy for 'em," he said.

Dozens of gargantuan melons have overtaken Weeks' back pasture and they sell for $20 to $75 each. But that's not how Weeks makes a living.

He sells seeds. The 197-pounder produced 1,717 seeds. Weeks sells them and thousands of others in 100 seed stores across North Carolina and by mail order to 49 states.

Since Weeks began "crossin' up seeds" back in 1964, his fields have drawn crowds from such places as New Jersey and Chicago.

They come to look at 160-pound pumpkins the size of armchairs, ears of corn 15 inches long, a peanut the size of a small carrot, a 39-pound cantaloupe and three-pound tomatoes the size of volleyballs.

"It's a challenge, I reckon," Weeks said.

Weeks started crossing seeds as a hobby after watching his father develop the process.

"Daddy was never interested in seeing how big he could go," Weeks said. "He just had fun with it."

But Weeks is fascinated with his ability to grow giant plants. He saves seeds from year to year, strategically planting larger and larger strains which are pollinated by bees. He mixes his own special brand of fertilizer and adheres to a few simple growing secrets.

Watermelons grown from Weeks' seeds have set records in Florida and Alabama. A Florida man claimed to have grown six melons totaling 1,480 pounds on a single vine from Weeks' seeds.
